The Challenge

Canadians use, on average, more energy per capita than any other country in the world. To put this into perspective, Canada - a country of just over 35 million people - uses more energy than all of India: a country of over 1.2 billion people. In fact, Canada consumes more energy than the entire continent of Africa.

It's time for Canadians to start being green neighbours in the world community, and you can help make this happen.

Make arrangements with your colleagues to start carpooling to work today, and then tweet out images of your climate action using the hashtag #GreenNeighbourChallenge.
